PROJECT:
EXPOSED
JACQUES JOUBERT
PERSISTENT IMPOSTER, FRAUDSTER AND
SHAMEFUL PRETENDER

PUBLIC WARNING!

This exposure project aims to bring to light the fraudulent activities and disgraceful deception perpetrated by Jacques Joubert, a 56-year-old individual who has been shamelessly posing as an ex-Recce officer and squad commander.

Joubert's recent acts of fraud, theft and embezzlement have targeted unsuspecting victims here in South Africa as well as overseas (Germany in particular). Criminal cases have been opened in Germany and SSS has several copies of sworn affidavits in our possession.

Additionally, Joubert's audacious pretence as a South African food specialist ("Braaimaster") and trader in fresh produce highlights his deceitful nature and the depths to which he stoops to perpetrate his scams.

PERSONAL INFORMATION:

- First Name: Jacques
 - Surname: Joubert
 - Date of Birth: 12/03/1967

BACKGROUND:

- Jacques Joubert, utilising his fabricated military background, has cunningly exploited the trust and respect associated with military service.
- Posing as an ex-SADF Special Forces member and squad commander, he preys on the vulnerability of individuals who admire and trust those who have served in the armed forces.
- The following sections will highlight three significant instances where Joubert's fraudulent tactics were employed.

Mr. Jacques Joubert
(Added December 2021)

Mr Jacques Joubert, who is resident in Untergruppenbach Germany, considers himself a hero of the Angolan Bush War. He has declared himself a SA Special Forces operator and even falsified an Operator's Certificate, proudly on display in his office, to substantiate his wild dreams. Having killed "countless numbers of the enemy in close-quarter combat" with a prized knife on show for all to see. And of course, he had to flee his beloved home country when the new dispensation came about as he had done "too much damage" as a feared Special Forces operator.

Mr Jacques Joubert was never at any time a Special Forces Operator, or even a Special Forces member, in the South African Army. He blatantly uses his false stories, certificates and fake memorabilia in attempts to gain the trust of people around him. He is not one and has never been associated with SA Special Forces Operators. The SA Special Forces Association strongly dissociates itself from Mr Joubert for making a mockery of our standards, history and credentials.

INCIDENT 1: FRAUDULENT ACTIVITIES TARGETING A GERMAN INVESTOR

- In this case, Jacques Joubert intentionally defrauded a German investor.
- Exploiting his false identity as an ex-military member, Mr Joubert gained his victim's confidence and manipulated him into investing in a fictitious venture (i.e. the container import of fresh produce from South America).
- Regrettably, due to Mr Joubert's fraudulent practices, his victim suffered substantial financial losses, as the planned container imports never materialized.
- In order to gain his victim's confidence, he frequently referred to the Special Forces Code of Honour, thereby emphasising his "reliability".
- Adding insult to injury, Mr Joubert took advantage of his victim's trust by stealing a number of high-value items, intensifying the impact of his deceitful scheme.
- The gravity of Mr Joubert's actions is evidenced by a large number of individuals and institutions opening various cases against him in Germany, concerning fraud, theft, embezzlement and the forgery of documents.

- He is wanted by the German police and will be arrested, should he attempt to cross the border.

INCIDENT 2: DECEPTIVE SALE OF ROTTEN BILTONG

- Exploiting his claimed expertise as a South African food specialist, Jacques Joubert targeted an investor who opened a traditional South African cuisine establishment in Berlin, Germany.
- Mr Joubert employed his false identity and manipulated the investor's desire for quality products.
- He cunningly swindled several thousand Euros from the unsuspecting individual.
- Under the guise of importing authentic South African food products, Joubert duped the investor into purchasing boxes of rotten Biltong, a traditional South African dried meat delicacy.
- This callous act not only inflicted significant financial losses on the investor but also tarnished their reputation, as the purchased goods were unfit for consumption.

INCIDENT 3: FRAUDULENT INDUCEMENT TO CONTRACT

- Making use of a small South African shop as a front for his fraudulent activities, Jacques Joubert ordered goods from a South African lady who is a single mother, running a home industry as her only source of income.
- Mr Joubert placed his order even though he was aware from the beginning that there was no way of paying for it.
- He received the goods, sold them in his shop and never paid the lady who was his supplier.
- The fact that he ordered the goods under false and fraudulent pretences and eventually not paying for the goods delivered, gained him a profit of several thousand Rand.
- The lady, as his South African supplier, still had to carry the costs for raw materials, the salaries of her staff and the costs of transport via air cargo to Germany, leaving her with a total loss of almost R40,000.00.
- This callous act not only brought a single mother to the brink of personal bankruptcy but also forced her to use all of her reserves to pay her staff and all other costs related to this shipment.
- To this day, the lady has not seen a single cent paid back to her.

CURRENT EMPLOYMENT AND THE SHAMEFUL DECEPTION:

- It has come to light that Jacques Joubert, described in the previous sections, is currently employed as General Manager at the PADSTAL Pub and Grill, located at The Grove Mall, in Pretoria East.

- This revelation highlights the urgency of making potential victims and the general public aware of Joubert's current whereabouts and employment.
 - Individuals must exercise extreme caution and remain vigilant when dealing with him, particularly in any business or personal interactions.

This exposure project aims to warn others, emphasising the crucial need to verify individuals' claims and exercise rigorous due diligence before engaging in any transactions or interactions.

It is imperative that individuals remain aware of Jacques Joubert's fraudulent schemes, particularly his audacious impersonation of an ex-military member, as this deception underscores the depths of his deceitfulness!
