PROJECT: BUYING AND SELLING

SSS has observed a surge in risks associated with buying and selling, both online and in-person. Your safety and security are paramount to us, and we want to equip you with the necessary know-how to safeguard yourself against scams related to these transactions.

ONLINE TRANSACTIONS:

- Although online platforms have made conducting business more convenient, it is crucial to remain vigilant to ensure your safety.
 - To guarantee your protection, we strongly advise taking the following precautions:
 - Conduct thorough research on sellers, read customer reviews and establish their credibility before proceeding with any transaction.
 - Only engage with established online marketplaces that have strict user verification processes and top-notch security measures.
 - Exercise caution when selecting payment options and use reliable payment gateways or services that offer comprehensive buyer protection.
 - Be wary when sharing personal information and watch out for phishing attempts or suspicious requests for sensitive information.

PHYSICAL TRANSACTIONS:

- In-person transactions are still relevant, and we want to assist you in safeguarding yourself during these exchanges.
- We recommend adhering to these guidelines:
 - Meet in busy public spaces during daylight hours to minimize potential risks associated with fraudulent activity.
 - Thoroughly inspect the item in question before concluding the transaction to ensure its condition, authenticity, and accompanying documentation (if any).
 - For high-value transactions, request legal documentation such as receipts, warranties, or proof of ownership to safeguard your rights as a consumer.
 - Seek guidance from experts for complex purchases, such as real estate, vehicles, or high-value electronics.

REPORT SUSPECTED SCAMS:

- Despite our efforts to educate the public, scams still occur, and we implore you to report any suspicious activity to the relevant authorities, such as the SAPS, consumer protection organizations, or the administrators of the online platform involved.
- Reporting these scams helps to quell fraudulent activities and protect others from falling prey.
- We encourage you to disseminate this information to your loved ones, friends, and neighbours to establish a safer environment for transactions throughout South Africa.
- If you have any doubts about a transaction, please contact SSS for a thorough investigation.

We are delighted to announce that we now buy and sell new and used tech products like mobile phones, computers, and gaming consoles. Our products undergo rigorous testing, and ownership is authenticated before we purchase them.

This enhancement to our service offering helps to decrease the number of stolen goods being sold for profit and eliminates the apprehension that ordinary people face when transacting online or offline.
